The Sense of the Heart

A certain spirit of cooperation remains palpable, which is doubtlessly thanks to ISAP's democratic functioning.

The growth of student enrollment, and our students' professional and personal qualities also provide grounds for satisfaction. Feedback from guest lecturers in this regard is instructive and gratifying. Further we must recognize the pleasing fact of steady development and improvement in our institutional structures and organizational procedures, which provide students and Participants alike with better transparency and reduced grounds for friction. It is also important to note the creative energy visible in the designing of the annual Jungian Odyssey, in the organization of special lectures, in new ideas for improving our training, and in many more independent initiatives.

President's Letter

Paul Brutsche, President

This Annual Report can perhaps serve to stimulate some thoughts about the state of affairs at our institution. In my view, we have grounds to be satisfied. With a certain sense of wonder we note that, in the three years since its founding and out of a dramatic emergency situation, in relatively short time ISAP has developed into a viable institution. In a tendency toward ossification, which clings to all institutions, we see no serious threat. To the contrary, we gladly mark the continuing engagement of many Participants. This is evident in our colleagues' abundant participation in the course program—which, with more than 80 classes each semester, may be unique in the Jungian world. It is further evident in more than 30% of our colleagues who actively function as committee members, who attend various events and meetings, and who collaborate in so many different ways. This is not to mention the nearly 100% who pay participation fees, thus significantly contributing to ISAP's financial health.

The other way around, we are undeniably confronted with certain difficulties and challenges. Here I wish to mention only two of these:

In order to keep costs as low as possible, we in the Officers Committee, and other committee members, have done much work that would ordinarily be delegated to a sufficiently staffed secretariat. It has become evident that this quantity of work, done on a volunteer basis, cannot be sustained in the long run. From this standpoint support through additional staff, or the provision of relief by more colleagues, appears to be indispensable. However this would entail higher costs, which could be offset only by raising tuition and semester fees, and/or by increasing the Participation fees and donations.

The desire to engage in the function of leadership, it seems to us, finds limits among Jungians. At any rate the Nominating Committee has found itself using all imaginable means to find candidates for the replacement of the few withdrawing colleagues. Such gracious reserve toward leadership functions, and the possible adjustment to leadership from above, present our community with a certain problem. This is all the more so as our Participants' average age moves dangerously toward that of retirement—when the readiness for intensive leadership engagement, as a rule, rather diminishes.

Officers Committee Meetings To manage the regular business, the Officers Committee (OC) convened 12 times between Dec 07 and Jan 08, that is, roughly once a month, on Wednesday evenings, 18:30–23:00. The discussion of more fundamental questions and special plans were reserved for 2 retreats in 2007, one in May and one in October.

Contact with the AGAP ExCo In the course of the year various members of the OC participated in 4 weekend meetings with the AGAP Executive Committee. This collaboration between the two leadership organs was very constructive. Not only did ISAP receive much interest and understanding from the ExCo, but also concrete support in the creation of our basis documents.

Contact with Students In addition to the regular contact with students enabled by the Student Representatives' attendance of OC meetings, contact was maintained at two meetings of the OC and student body.

My Withdrawal from the Presidency At the General Assembly, I too will be stepping down. Originally I had planned to serve as president only for one year, to contribute the experience I had gained as CGJI president. The one year has now become 3½. The unintentional prolongation was not due to my inability to envision a life without a leadership role—but rather because ISAP's build-up required a certain continuity. It was a time of many challenges and many gratifying experiences. What gave me the necessary energy was satisfaction of building up a new Jungian training institution, the gratifying experience of strong teamwork in the leadership, the experience of good will and active support from the wider circle of colleagues, and finally the satisfaction and joy in our common experiment, ISAP. I am now stepping down because, after 17 years of leadership with various Jungian organs, a stop is in order—for my own good and in the interest of the project. As I do so, it is with feelings of relief, gratitude, and confidence in ISAP's further development.

The Departing Director of Studies Paul Brutsche on Behalf of the OC

Katharine Casanova (r) & Nathalie Baratoff April 2005

On February 9, 2008 Katharina Casanova will step down as Director of Studies. Katharina did much important work in this key position at our school. She was required to develop the function of Director of Studies from the ground up, and without the resource of previous experience.

Her responsibilities included talks with prospective students; advising students in the most various phases of training through hundreds of discussions and written exchanges; leading the Studies Secretariat; the build-up and maintenance of the exam system—and much more. She carried out her work with feeling and engagement, investing much personal time and energy. We thank her heartily for her commitment and now wish her a well-earned and thorough rest.

The Departing President Stacy Wirth, Vice-President On Behalf of the OC

At this occasion we note that on February 9th 2008, Paul Brutsche will step down from ISAP's leadership. With this we not only part from ISAP's first president—but also say good-bye to a leader who steered ISAP from rough beginnings to its emergence as a vital and flourishing training institution—successfully wooing and inspiring many of us along the way. We are inestimably grateful for Paul's sensitive, accessible and decisive leadership. While we are sorry to see him go, we are even more convinced that he deserves rest and recuperation. When this is accomplished, we will commit our best creative energies to finding new ways to collaborate with him!

Studies Committee

Katharina Casanova, Director of Studies

General Update Since ISAP opened in the fall of 2004, our training has steadily grown. Apart from dealing with regular student matters we have continued to answer an increasing number of new inquiries, either by appointment at ISAP, or by phone or email. Gine Ried Hasler, as assistant to the Director of Studies, is now fully responsible for sched uling exams and running the exam Conference. In 2007 we held 115 exams and awarded 4 diplomas. Whereas by the end of the fall semester 5 students had exmatriculated (diploma, certificate or personal circumstances) —we now look forward to welcoming 8 new students in the spring (4 training candidates and 4 matriculated auditors). We are very grateful to Elena Eckels for keeping the files up-to-date. Without her engagement and good spirit, the running of the Studies Secretariat would be impossible. Also important in this regard is the close collaboration of the Director of Studies, Director of Admissions, and office staff.

Demographics As per the fall of 2007, 64 women and 18 men were enrolled at ISAP. Of these 82 students, 40 are diploma candidates, 26 are training candidates, 13 are matriculated auditors, and 3 are trainees from AJAJ. English remains to be the preferred language for 57 students, while German is catching up, with 25 German-speakers constituting 1/3 of the student body. The countries represented are as follows: USA (16), Canada (9), Germany and Japan (6 each), Italy (5), Denmark (3), Sweden, South Africa and Norway (2 each), an Australia, Belgium, China, England, France Lithuania, Mexico and Venezuela (1 each).

Charta In the summer semester our Charta mentors sat in on 9 exams, and subsequently reported on their very good impression of our training. Nevertheless the matter of quality improvement was debated at the last Exam Conference, which led to a proposal that will be up for vote at the forthcoming General Assembly.

Ambulatorium In 2007 we maintained steady contact with the Ambulatorium—be this to refer practicum candidates, or to attend continuing education events. The ISAP and Ambulatorium presidents held two meetings to discuss general matters.

Subject Committees The committees for the exam subject areas (Fachschaften) have been constituting themselves since last summer. In principle the examiners of each subject belong

Finances

Stefan Boëthius, Treasurer

At this writing the closing of the financial year 2007 still lies ahead. It can be said that—as budgeted—we will be seeing a slight loss. For the first time our financial development gives some cause for concern. Our expenses are increasing more rapidly than our income. This trend will unfortunately persevere in 2008. The greatest increase of expenses originates in our personnel costs. The increasing need for personnel engagement, as well as personnel turnover, has led to more expenditures. The library is also expensive—although luckily, to date some 2/3 of the costs have been covered by individual, generous donations. The expense of our premises has also increased. The time-limited rent reduction agreement provided by our landlord, Herr Maissen, is coming to a close, and we will be faced with gradually increasing rental costs.

There was no special campaign for donations in this year, although we would have needed additional funds. While the responsibility for fundraising may well belong to the Treasurer, I had neither the time nor energy for this job. My regular responsibilities for ISAP and AGAP are already springing my limits. Nevertheless a meeting with a professional fundraiser took place, and led to some important insights. (1) A professional fundraiser is not prepared to work on a contingency basis. ISAP cannot afford to pay a fundraiser's salary. (2) The pool of potential donors must be widened beyond the „inner to the respective committees, with colleagues functioning as chair of each. Many committees have already convened, meaning that we can count on an updated reading list in the near future, as well as a good connection with the Program Committee. I take this chance to heartily thank all the colleagues involved.

circle“ of colleagues. It would thus be important to build up a network of individuals who are acquainted with and can convince potential donors. (3) We must define projects that can be viewed by donors as interesting and deserving of support. (4) The Internet and Homepage are important fundraising instruments. (5) Donations to ISAP ought to be subject to tax exemption. While we already have this status in Switzerland, it would be important to gain it in the US and EU countries. In other words, ISAP still has much homework left for creating an effective fundraising program.

The donations for 2007 were constituted as follows: Donations for the library: CHF 37,900. Unstipulated donations from colleagues: about CHF 6,000. Donations from AGAP members for the Student Loan Fund: about CHF 4,000. Then there were many non-monetary contributions. These included the ISAP homepage, the rental reduction, and material gifts from colleagues. At this opportunity the Officers Committee wishes to again heartily thank all of our donors, who help insure that ISAP has a future. ISAP is dependent on such voluntary gestures.

Prognosis for 2008: It will be of vital importance to increase income and limit expenditures. Without firm measures in this direction, ISAP can expect a loss of more than CHF 100,000. This would mean, among other things, that we may need to forego the payment of honoraria according to the point system.

Library

Nathalie Baratoff

Our library is growing and the donations and acquisitions are already taking on the fairytale proportions of The Sweet Porridge. The CHF 100,000 donated by the Parrotia Foundation will be divided over three years. Since all but a few rare books from the reading list have now been acquired, this money can be directed toward the purchase of new books. This is a necessary step in modernizing our collection. We appeal to the subject committees (Fachschaften) to supply us with information on new books in their respective areas. The additional funds have also allowed us to purchase a new computer for the books already catalogued. This will be installed by the beginning of spring semester 2008.

To date 1,070 books have been catalogued. Helga has a team of participants and students to help provide key words for cataloguing, and to cover the catalogued books. Up till now the library has been open for student use two half-days. At the request of the students a third half-day will now be taken over by the students themselves.

As already mentioned, we have received many books this year. Of the larger donations we would like to mention those of our deceased colleagues Ian Baker, José Zavala and Ursula Dohrn. We thank all donors for taking part in making ISAP's library a valuable and vital part of our school.

And finally, our book store, which is but one year old, has already sold books for the amount of CHF 16,000, with a profit of 4,800 for ISAP.

Administration

Sandra Schnekenburger, Director

Office Transitions In November 06 I officially took over from Karen Evers as Administrative Director. I have been very fortunate in having Karin Buchser (our office manager) at my side. She has done a remarkable job this year assisting us all into the running of an efficient office, and creating an order to enable ISAP to run smoothly. We have four people managing our Front Office (Karin Buchser (KB), Sandy Schnekenburger (SS), Helga Kopecky (HK), Daniela Imhasly (DI) until October 07, since replaced by Myrta Blarer (MB). This has required good communication and team work. MB's job has been increased to 40% Front Office and 20% bookkeeping. This extra 20% means that our Front Office is now open on Fridays. We are very pleased to have MB with us, and wish DI and her baby (son) and family well. HK (20% Front Office) with all her experience and Jungian contact completes our office team, together with her running of the library and serving as AGAP's secretary. Our new Front Office schedule (see p.11) enables KB more time with overall management, and to ensure that technical and organizational structures and processes are optimized or brought into effect. KB has initiated monthly office meetings, in which we keep minutes, and follow-up on all matters affecting administration. The minutes serve as an efficient information channel and are sent to the Officers Committee and to Studies. We also work closely with the Studies Secretariat (Elena Eckels), but in order to keep the content and structure of the two areas Front Office and Studies separate and clear, we refer all questions relating to Studies directly to Elena Eckels, respectively Katharina Casanova or Gine Ried Hasler.

Technology and Infrastructure There were no big investments with equipment or technology in 2007. Fewer doors within the building are being locked, giving students more access to space. The student representatives Axel Essbaum and Vicki Hart were very active in negotiating and implementing student requests. They saw to the furnishing of the kitchen and created a study space for the students in Room 102.

Work Study We are grateful to students who take on this responsibility—they see to it that ISAP functions after hours (lectures and seminars in the evenings and on weekends). They are responsible to lock and unlock the building, collect money at lectures, and help with the technical equipment. They are instructed by KB, and contribute valuable effort with modest pay to the running of ISAP. We thank each one for their assistance.

Program Committee

Nathalie Baratoff, Director

In 2007 the Program Committee (PC) was proud to offer a program of over 80 courses in each semester. This would, of course, never have been possible without your participation, for which we thank you warmly. ISAP participants held three quarters of the courses, and guest lecturers the remaining quarter.

In the spring semester we had two special events: The Jung Memorial, and The Alchemy of Training, as described in the last Memo. Also in this semester ISAP again organized the Prelude to the Jungian Odyssey (JO). During this week directly preceding the Odyssey, JO participants can acquaint themselves with ISAP and the way we work by attending regular seminars on campus.

Each fall semester the PC offers a ring lecture series. In 2007 this was devoted to Art and Psyche. Apart from this we had a special panel discussion, The Politics of Complexes. Such special events are of course intended to introduce the public to ISAP. But just as importantly, they aim to bring together our analysts and students, to develop a spirit of community. The PC hopes that such events will continue to meet with interest among our participants.

Admissions Committee

Doris Lier, Chair

The Admissions Committee met 4 times in 2007. In the interim vigorous email contact was maintained. We held admissions interviews with 23 potential candidates, and accepted 21 of these. Nine students were promoted to Diploma Candidacy, while 8 received a green light for continuing supervised casework and registering Student Loans I am not yet able to report success, but am well into the process of getting ISAP hopefully accepted in the US Federal Loans Program. All the documents are in, and under review at present.

Thanks to Isabelle Meier, who is now the Swiss editor for the Zeitschrift für Analytische Psychologie (ZAP), we have been invited to submit manuscripts of our ring lectures for publication. Three lectures from last year's Music and Psyche will appear in the next issue of ZAP. The same offer has been made for this year's lecture series. We hope that some of our speakers will also submit their manuscripts for the following issue. The PC welcomes the creation of the Subject Committees (Fachschaften) and hopes that they will actively participate in shaping the semester program. It will be of great help to the PC as each committee begins to take responsibility for shaping and structuring its subject area.

This year we also attempted to better organize a welcome to our guest speakers. Susanne Boëthius has taken on this task and made our guests feel at home at ISAP. We hope to be able to continue this service and count on your support. As this first experience has shown, it was not only our guests who profited from this welcoming gesture; those participants who took part were also enriched by the contact.

for Diploma Exams. This year we accompanied 4 students through to graduation.

Besides attending to individual student questions, we intensively studied the International Part-Resident Regulations—and this, with the aim of equipping ourselves to accurately present the options to potential candidates. Based on the background of interest arising from the Jungian Odyssey, we also decided to conduct preliminary admissions interviews during the Odyssey 2008. some basic issues—for instance, the difference between admissions interviews and analytical hours; the procedures for transferring training from other institutions; and the possibility to credit body therapies as parallel therapy. Last but not least in 2007 we reorganized our working relationship with the Officers Committee, and intensified communications between the Directors of Studies and Admissions. It was a fruitful year of engaged collaboration among our 7 members.

Promotions Committee

Jan Peter Hallmark, Chair

The Promotions Committee (PromCom) concluded its work for 2007 with the annual promotions interviews. These consist of 2-hour discussions, which were held with local and international colleagues applying for the status of Training Analyst. In such interviews we do our best to get a good feel for each candidate's personality, approach to work, and life and work experience. The core piece of the process—a 1-hour case presentation—has proved to be especially stimulating and instructive.

With some two years of development, the tasks and procedures of the PromCom are now well defined—which allows me a certain ease in passing my function on to my successor at the General Assembly in 2008. At this time, we will be electing not only a new chair, but also new committee members. I thank everyone who has supported my work, and wish the PromCom all the best for the future!

Jan Peter Hallmark, our departing Promotions Committee Chair, did the great service to ISAP of launching a committee that entirely lacked historical precedence in the Zurich training context. Thanks to his diligence, the matter of analyst promotions has shifted away from central authority, to become a process of peer evaluation. Whether facing the complexities of uncharted administration, or the certain moral challenge, Jipe typically responded with equanimity and humor. For all of this, and for the legacy he leaves to build on, we are very grateful. We wish him all the best in his future undertakings—and look forward to his continuing, active participation at ISAP! sw

Nominating Committee

Ursula Hohler, Chair

Soon after the elections 2006, the Nominating Committee (NomCom) convened for an evaluation meeting. Since May 30th the needs and vacancies of ISAP's various committees have been discussed in several meetings, and in due time, the office sent out the announcement of vacancies to be filled through the elections on February 2008. The NomCom members are still discussing possible candidatures, and have already prepared the related documents for the coming elections. At the beginning of January 2008 the NomCom circulated a letter presenting its members' views on current developments at ISAP, and is currently in the process of assessing colleagues' replies to this.

Ombudspersons

ISAP offers support in conflict resolution for students & analysts, through two Ombudspersons. These are currently René Malamud and Maria Meyer-Grass, both of whom are highly competent in the field, and will handle your issues confidentially in German or English. Their contacts appear on p. 10 of this Report. Details on the Ombudspersons' functions and limits are contained in our Organizational Guidelines. The Guidelines may be ordered from the office, or downloaded at www.isapzurich.com (presently under the rubric of "Participation as an Analyst"). Please note that complaints belong elsewhere if they are of an ethical nature, or are deemed to be so in the course consultation with the Ombudspersons. In such case you will be asked to approach the AGAP Ethics Committee.

Counseling Service

Lucienne Marguerat & Eileen Nemeth, Directors

In 2007 we received 74 inquiries and made 62 referrals. We do our best to refer to diploma candidates. In certain cases however we must take recourse to colleagues—for instance, when inquiries come from regions of Switzerland in which we have no practicing candidates. Colleagues have also received referrals concerning specialized therapy, for instance for couples, and for children and adolescents; in such regard, however, a small number of qualified candidates have recently surfaced, and we hope to hear from others who are interested.

The adverts in Google have proven to be the very best way of recruiting new cases for the diploma candidates. Another reliable source is IMD in Lausanne (International Institute for Management Development). There our candidates have the opportunity to conduct short-term therapy with people from all parts of the world.

In 2008 we will intensify our efforts to familiarize the public with the Counseling Service (CS) and its resources. This aim can be supported among other ways with collaboration between the CS and Diploma Candidates. With this in mind we have initiated regular informal joint meetings at which problems can be voiced, suggestions made, and ideas for individual initiatives or common projects pursued.

Over 3,500 English-speaking subscribers will soon hold our new flyer in their hands, as an attachment to one of five different magazines distributed in the Zurich area. We will also try to motivate our colleagues to make contact with one of the many social institutions in Zurich, especially those dealing with foreigners, and tell them about our offer and special assets such as the cultural diversity. Should any colleague want to bring his or her own connections into play, all the better!

Office of the Ombudsman

René Malamud and Maria Meyer-Grass

In the training year 2006/07 neither the ombudswoman nor the ombudsman were in any way called to matters related to their functions. Two possible conclusions may be drawn:

- a) All is in order, the opposites are balanced.
- b) It is not clear, or not sufficiently clear, to the students that they may turn to the ombudspersons for support in resolving certain kinds of conflict.

Jungian Odyssey

Isabelle Meier, Chair

We are pleased to report that the Odyssey Prelude, taking place at ISAP, attracted 18 participants in 2007, as opposed to some 7 in 2006. The following countries were represented: USA, Holland, Canada, South Africa, China und Portugal. We attribute the increase to such new offers as an informal President's welcome, an introductory course on fundamentals (alongside the usual rich course offerings), an excursion and dinner in Zurich with ISAP students and analysts. We appreciate the extra burden put on the office staff by the increased attendance, and thank them for their extra efforts—and especially for their support when our organization left something to be desired.

At Rotschuo we welcomed 70 participants from around the world. Among these were 20 ISAP trainees, 47 people from the outside and 3 ISAP presenters who joined for the whole week. Also here a variety of countries were represented: USA, South Africa, Germany, Greece, Japan, Canada, Holland, Finland, China, Portugal, England, France, Spain und Australia. Counting all presenters and organizers, on certain days participation was up to 90, as was the case in 2006. This all made for a lively cultural exchange as well as for rigorous inquiry into the topic, Exploring the Other Side: The Reality of Soul in a World of Prescribed Meanings. It remains to thank a number of work-study students, without whose diligent support (of the Prelude and activities in Rotschuo) we would have been hard-pressed to manage.

As most of you know, plans for the Odyssey 2008 in Beatenberg are well underway. Responding to the new topic, Intimacy: Venturing the Uncertainties of the Heart, some 30 colleagues offered lectures, seminars and experiential workshops. For this overwhelming response we are extremely grateful and encour-
