ISAPZURICH, in conjunction with the IAAP Congress, opens its doors to share two painting collections.

The Blum Collection is a sequence of 43 paintings by David Blum donated to ISAP by Sarah Blum. This psychological legacy shows his journey grappling with cancer.

The ISAP Picture Collection comprises materials from clients who have been in analysis in the tradition of C.G. Jung's analytical psychology. The exquisite paintings of one of these artists will be exhibited.

Join us for an apéro to celebrate both collections on 28 August 19:00–20:00!

The Art of the Self

The Blue Book of Olga Fröbe-Kapteyn, founder of Eranos

Riccardo Bernardini, Ph.D., Psy.D.

Eranos founder Olga Fröbe-Kapteyn's (1881–1962) unpublished anthology of artwork, which we might rubricate under the name "Blue Book," is traceable to two distinct periods. The first phase is inherent in a series of "Meditation Plates" painted between 1926 and 1934: these images are expressed through a geometric rigor, eschewing any naturalism of form. As a result of her deepening of Analytical Psychology and the maturation of her intellectual relationship with C.G. Jung, one of the most influential figures in her life and among the most important inspirers of the Eranos Conferences, Olga Fröbe-Kapteyn's artistic practice increasingly turned toward a figurative style that recalled the active imagination, to which the works of the second period can be traced: a collection of 315

"Visions," arranged in 12 blue-bound albums, drawn between 1934 and 1938. Convinced that "The deepest things in human life ... can only be expressed in images," Olga Fröbe-Kapteyn documented in her "Blue Book" the forms of imagination of a creative and independent subjectivity, capable of holding together the identities of woman, mother, scholar, artist, and spiritualist. Olga Fröbe-Kapteyn perhaps hoped that her "Blue Book" would survive her and allow the generations that would follow her to rediscover and make it their own, as a special attestation of that endless search for Self, at once personal and universal, that Jung would theorize with the idea of "individuation process".

Traumdeutung nach C.G. Jung

- Träume überbringen uns Botschaften, die verstanden werden wollen. Sie reagieren auf Erleben und Gedanken aus dem Wachleben. Sie berichten von Gefühlen, die im Moment nicht wahrgenommen werden. Sie machen uns auf die tiefen Gründe für unser Verhalten aufmerksam.
- Ob bedrückend, verwirrend oder wunderschön, Träume sind eine heilsame und reichhaltige Quelle an Erkenntnissen über uns selbst.
- Die Träume haben ihre eigene Sprache; sie sprechen in Bildern ähnlich wie Märchen, Sagen und Religionen aller Zeiten. Wenn wir ihren Hinweisen und unseren Einfällen dazu nachgehen, werden verborgene Kräfte freigelegt.
- Welche Anregung will mir der Traum geben? Warum gerade jetzt?

Jungian Keynotes Lecture Series

Uncertainty: Is It a Gift?

We feel cultural foundations we have relied upon are upended: polarization, violent projections, anxiety abound. Have we access now to truth? Gifts psyche offers are creative gestures, found in energy from recalling projections, from exploring integrative projections, from locality and naming, and in new forms of communication and of liberation from destructive complexes.

01 02 Lecture - Fundamentals of Analytical Psychology

Joseph Cambray, PhD, Professor

Tuesday

2 September | 15:00–16:45

On-site & Live on Zoom

Jungian Keynotes Lecture Series

Synchronicity, Complexity and the Psychoid Field: Towards Re-Enchantment

This presentation will begin with a brief history of the origins and development of Jung's notions of synchronicity and the psychoid. Complexity and field theories will then be used to contemporize these ideas. Examples of synchronistic phenomena from the presenter's practice will be explored using this approach. Further selected examples from the history of culture (especially where artisans or artists were able to represent profound knowledge of highly-complex natural phenomena well ahead of any scientific understanding) indicating the reality of psychoid fields will be offered.

05 03 Lecture - Ethnology & Psychology

Jörg Rasche, Dr. med.

Tuesday

2 September | 17:00–18:45

On-site & Live on Zoom

Jungian Keynotes Lecture Series

Cultural Complexes and Politics

Cultural identities and narratives have an essential impact on the self concepts of nations and their political behavior. In times of social media with mass manipulation, with reactivated enemy projections and digital anesthesia regarding war or ecocide, we see a revival of archaic archetypal patterns threatening the basics of democracy. Analytical Psychology can contribute to a better understanding of these dynamics and become a resource for inner balance.

11 04 Lecture - Individuation

Kumiko Yamane, PhD

Eliza Wangerin, MA

Wednesday

3 September | 10:00–11:45

Alternative Individuation: The Non-Understandable, Ineffable Way of East Asians

As Jungian analysts from Japan and the Philippines, we aim to highlight that the individuation process in East Asian cultures occurs differently and appears differently from what Jung suggested. In East Asia, individuation does not necessarily mean becoming an individual who differentiates him/herself from others. Rather, becoming conscious of being both an individual and a part of the collective, as well as striving for both individual and collective growth, is a more central concern. This lecture seeks to enrich the imaginative and creative space surrounding what the individuation process could be.

01 05 Lecture - Fundamentals of Analytical Psychology

Murray Stein, PhD

Wednesday

3 September | 13:00–14:45

On-site & Live on Zoom

Jungian Keynotes Lecture Series

What Does Jungian Psychology Stand for in the World Today?

The lecture will be followed by a 15-minute Q&A session. Suggested reading for the lecture is the soon-to-be-published volume, The Self, Individuation, Communitas: Reflections on Fundamental Values in Analytical Psychology, edited by Murray Stein and Emilija Kiehl (Chiron Publications).

11 06 Lecture - Individuation

Michael Monhart, MA, STM

Wednesday

3 September | 15:00–16:45

On-site & Live on Zoom

Jungian Keynotes Lecture Series

Analytical Psychology in the 21st Century: Imagining a Relationship with a Future

This presentation highlights and explores in depth two themes: the role of the productive imagination and the particularly analytical concepts of relationship – for the unconscious, between analyst and analysand, and for the individual in society. Jungian psychology, uniquely, initiates a dialogue between the reproductive and the productive imagination modeled in alchemy. Similarly, a creative dialogic relationship with the unconscious is fostered through the analytical process. Both imagination and relationship form healing modalities for the individual and for their role in society.

09 07 Lecture - Comparison of Psychodynamic Concepts

Donald E. Kalsched, PhD

Thursday

4 September | 15:00–16:45

On-site & Live on Zoom

Jungian Keynotes Lecture Series

Inner and Outer Democracy vs. Authoritarianism in the Psyche and Culture

This lecture will describe how an inner authoritarian system of dissociative defenses, typical of traumatized individuals, compromises the democratic nature of the psyche and tyrannizes it with fearful authoritarian “voices.” When a culture suffers traumatic anxiety, the same authoritarian system structures its cultural narrative and leads to the extremism and polarization we see today in the West.

11 08 Lecture - Individuation

Cedrus Monte, PhD

Friday

5 September | 13:00–14:45

On-site & Live on Zoom

Jungian Keynotes Lecture Series

“Therefore, I behold death, since it teaches me how to live.” (C.G. Jung, The Red Book)

The psyche is a self-regulating system. So, too, is nature. What happens to the psyche when nature is no longer self-regulating? What happens to the natural world when the psyche is no longer self-regulating? What does the possible demise of the natural world constellate in the psyche, and what role might analytical psychology play when considering this outcome?

02 09 Lecture - Psychology of Dreams

Dale Mathers, Dr. med.

Friday

5 September | 15:00–16:45

On-site & Live on Zoom

Jungian Keynotes Lecture Series

The Dreaming Mind and the Unus Mundus

Jung said dreams are symbolic communications from the Self, compensating for the conscious attitude, arising from the collective unconscious, the place where the Unus Mundus – the world soul – speaks, as seen in Wolfgang Pauli’s dream of the world clock (which developed his thinking about the structure of the atom).

Our minds form symbols using the executive network, the salience network, and the default mode network. Dreams develop empathy, memory and creativity, and connect us to the spiritual life of our planet through the transcendent function.

03 12 Lecture - Psychological Interpretation of Myths & Fairy Tales

Myth, Trauma, and the Birth of Consciousness: How Babylonian & Norse Creation Myths Foreshadow Modern Neuroscience and Illuminate Depth Psychology

This course explores how Babylonian and Norse creation myths reveal deep psychological truths about trauma, consciousness, and the human struggle for order. Drawing from modern neuroscience and depth psychology, we examine how these ancient narratives foreshadow the brain's response to crisis and power dynamics. With rising global autocracy, we analyze why societies turn to authoritarian figures, repeating mythic cycles of destruction and renewal in history and politics. We will also explore individuation as a counterforce, fostering awareness and resilience against collective regression.

04 18 Lecture - Psychological Interpretation of Pictures

Lucienne Marguerat, lic. phil.

Tuesday

16 September | 15:00–16:45

23 September | 15:00–16:45

30 September | 15:00–16:45

They Once Called It “The Art of The Insane”

We will look at the reflections of the pioneers of Art Brut. We will discuss the art works, the lives and personalities of some Art Brut/Outsider Art artists and examine how their art expresses their suffering and the existential meaning their art had in their lives.

04 19 Lecture - Psychological Interpretation of Pictures

Through the symbolism of a strange animal and one of the seven sins, this lecture explores the nature of regression, depression, introversion, and their role in the ego's relationship with the Self.

05 22 Lecture - Ethnology & Psychology

Tuesday

30 September | 10:00–11:45

On-site only at ISAP

Bitten and Bitten Again: An Archaic Magical Dance Ritual in Southern Italy

Tarantismo was an archaic ritual practice involving music, dance, colors, and a variety of symbols, used to heal women of a mythical spider bite. It was a mythical spider because only in rare cases had these women been bitten by an actual arachnid, even if most insisted that they had. The lecture will examine the symbolic meaning of the bite and its ritual healing, and explore the power of the ecstatic dance and its ancient Greek and Christian roots.

03 23 Lecture - Psychological Interpretation of Myths & Fairy Tales

Lisa Holland, MS

Tuesday

30 September | 13:00–14:45

On-site & Live on Zoom

The Truth about the False Bride

In this lecture the motif of the false bride will be explored through fairy tale and legend. How do we recognize and address the true and false brides within our clients and ourselves? Are these constructs still pertinent to us in a world of expanding sex and gender roles and freedom of expression? And if so, what implications might they offer for a richer and more integrated inner and outer marriage?

07 27 Lecture - Association Experiment & Theory of Complexes

Nancy van den Berg Cook, PhD, PsyD

Tuesday & Wednesday

7 October | 13:00–14:45

8 October | 13:00–14:45

On-site only at ISAP

Anatomy of a Complex: Giants in Fairy Tales and Neuroscience

I will illustrate how complexes function using the example of giants in fairy tales. I will include a thorough review of the Word Association Experiment (if needed) and the dynamic structures of the psyche as they are involved in complexes and their activation. For me complex theory is one of the most practical and useful of Jung's insights. I will give many clinical examples of how complexes work and how to deal with them. As a couples therapist for 15 years, I found this approach one of the most powerful tools for the couples themselves. I will also look at neuroscience as a central aspect of psychiatry that substantiates Jung's theories.

01 28 Lecture - Fundamentals of Analytical Psychology

Nancy van den Berg Cook, PhD, PsyD

Tuesday & Wednesday
7 October | 15:00–16:45
8 October | 15:00–16:45

On-site only at ISAP

The Animus: Understanding Gender and a Practical Approach to Working with Archetypal Masculinity

I explain how the autonomous animus ‘function’ is both the drive to spiritual development as well as a requirement for mental health in order to create and be active/recognized in the world. The larger issue of how to work in the analytic process with gender is also important here. I will be looking at the question of understanding why gender is so central in our biological psyche and essential for our work on the dynamics of psychic energy. It promotes psychological health as well as individuation.

04 31 Lecture - Psychological Interpretation of Pictures

The Power of Images: A Case Study

ISAP was given the original pictures made by David Blum when he faced terminal illness. David sought guidance and solace from his dreams and visions by painting them and engaging with the images through active imagination. The pictures speak to the joys, struggles, emotional turmoil, suffering, and wisdom David experienced. What insights and inspiration can this case study offer on healing and transformation in the journey unto death?

11 32 Lecture - Individuation

Judith Savage, DPsy

Images in Stone: Jung's Tower at Bollingen

This lecture is the culmination of an extensive collaboration between an architect and an analyst. I will present the story of Jung's tower as it is represented in Jungian literature along with an architectural understanding of the place. This lecture will review the history of the tower, its meaning to Jung and its meaning as Jung's “confession of faith in stone.”

A panel of four analysts (Dariane Pictet, Deborah Egger, Paul Brutsche and Bernard Sartorius) speak to the question from their own perspective and from their experience and interests. This will be followed by a time for discussion among the panelists and with the audience. The discussion is moderated by Murray Stein.

Zurich Lecture Series Postlude

“Your prayer increases the light of the star,” Septem Sermones: The Dawn of a New Aion?

At the end of the Septem Sermones ad Mortuos, we find a beautiful hymn, a poignant prayer to the one single Star in the zenith, to the one guiding God. “To this one God man shall pray... To him all love and worship is due.” It is your God, the true origin of life. This lecture will explore various passages in the Black Books and The Red Book which actually herald the dawn of a new stellar consciousness. The sun is no longer the primary symbol of the Self; rather it is the star. The sun has entered the underworld, the nocturnal world of the unconscious. This is the place of renewal.

The Mystery of the Anthropos – An Approach to an Archetypal Image

The astrological sign of Aquarius represents a human figure pouring water from a jug into the mouth of a fish. C.G. Jung calls this figure Anthropos, an image of the greater human being in us, or, we might say, the collective unconscious or “everything human” in us. The Anthropos embraces the opposites of the human psyche and is the origin of the human capacity for empathy and relatedness as well as the emotional brutality and fanaticism of mass man in our time. For Jung the union of opposites was a lifelong concern.

Guess Who’s Coming to Dinner: A Review of Jung’s Complex Theory

This lecture provides a comprehensive review of Jung’s theory of autonomous complexes, exploring their structure, function, and impact on the psyche. Complexes operate independently of the ego, influencing perception, behavior, and emotional states. Using Rumi’s “Guest House” as a metaphor, we will examine how these psychic entities shape experience and how awareness of them can lead to greater psychological differentiation. Through a detailed exploration of Jung’s writings, this lecture offers a deeper understanding of the complex as a fundamental mechanism of the psyche.

Working with Clients with Sexual Paraphilias (e.g. Paedophilia) in Analytical Psychotherapy

Sexuality remains a sensitive topic that is often avoided in psychotherapy. Many individuals feel uncertain or fearful about their sexual attractions. In this workshop we confront this avoidance by addressing various paraphilias including the delicate issue of paedophilia (that can especially lead to harmful situations). We will look at the development of paraphilias, explore their Jungian symbolism, and learn how to work with clients (of every gender) suffering from these attractions in a non-judgmental manner. Join us as we tackle this challenging yet crucial aspect of therapeutic practice.

08 43 Open Seminar - Developmental Psychology

Whatever Happened to Moral Development?

Is moral development falling into the collective shadow? In light of what Jung had to say about the development of conscience, we will examine the work of Lawrence Kohlberg (1927–1987) on moral development and education; this work was influenced by Piaget and critiqued by Carol Gilligan. I will supplement the topic with findings from neuroscience.

The Body and its Sacred Mystery at the Heart of the Female Individuation Process: In Search of Truth in the Quest for the Holy Grail

Despite all the gifts of our intellectual education, many of us have become profoundly disconnected from our bodies. Have you ever wondered why the term “vulva energy” is not as commonly used in psychoanalytic discourse as “phallic energy”? How can we navigate both our inner and outer worlds simultaneously—and truly expand?

“Yearning is the Way of Life”: The Role of Longing in Mysticism and Individuation

Longing played a crucial role for Jung: “Yearning is the way of life. If you do not acknowledge your yearning, then [...] you do not live your life.” (Red Book, pp. 249–250). Longing was also essential for many medieval mystics, e.g. John of the Cross, Teresa of Ávila, Meister Eckhart and Rumi. The lecture will explore the nature of longing and its significance for individuation and spiritual development, through the writings of various mystics as well as of Jung.

06 55 Lecture - Religion & Psychology

“Surrender to Ultimate Reality”: An Exploration of Mysticism in World Religions

This lecture offers an introduction to mysticism, with examples from Christianity and other world religions. Evelyn Underhill’s classical definition of mysticism implies a “surrender... to ultimate Reality... from an instinct of love” (Mysticism, 1911).

Jung wrote his major work Mysterium Coniunctionis about the alchemical union, the “central mystical experience of enlightenment ... aptly symbolized by Light in most of the numerous forms of mysticism” (CW XI, §828). A second lecture, which follows in spring 2026, will study the relationship between Jungian psychology and mysticism and its relevance in analysis.

05 56 Lecture - Ethnology & Psychology

Peter Ammann, Dr. phil.

Mantis Creates the Elan Antelope and the Moon: From the Instinct of Hunger to the Instinct of Reflection

This myth of the Bush People tells how their deity Mantis creates the eland antelope—the most important food source to satisfy the basic hunger instinct. Yet Mantis is cast out by his family, causing him utmost anger, even suicidal melancholy. But a crucial moment forces him out of his solitude toward what Jung calls an archetypal image: he creates the Moon—the eternal symbol of death and rebirth—bringing light into darkness, consciousness into unconsciousness. His reflected light becomes an expression of what Jung calls “the instinct of reflection,” “the cultural instinct par excellence.”

03 58 Lecture - Psychological Interpretation of Myths & Fairy Tales

Hidden Pathways of Germanic Mythology

The lectures take a Jungian look at the Germanic cosmology, the main gods and the end of time. We will speak about neglected Germanic female and male archetypes and the consequences of cultural repression and mythological illiteracy. I will explain how the old Germanic culture created an unrecognised precondition of the modern world. I will develop the concept of cultural ecology, emphasizing Germanic female archetypes. And I will show how Odin's self-sacrifice designates him to become the wounded healer par excellence and the archetypal image for the Analytical Psychologist.

05 60 Lecture - Ethnology & Psychology

Susanna Bucher, Dr. sc. nat. ETH

Thursday

4 December | 13:00–14:45

On-site & Live on Zoom

The Shamanic Worldview, Shamanic Experience and Jungian Psychology

This lecture will present some important aspects and examples of the traditional shamanic worldview from cultures around the globe. What do they have in common with Analytical Psychology? According to C.G. Jung, “shamanistic symbolism [...] is a projection of the individuation process.” Citing Mircea Eliade, Jung held that during the shamanic trance, shamans find their true self. The shamanic trance is similar to Jung's Active Imagination.
